The East End Champions Get a Terrible Drubbing

BY THE LEAGUE SLUGGERS.

President Day Explains a Point About the Club Charters.

JOHNNY WARD SAYS A FEW WORDS

More Exciting Games Among the American Association Clubs.

GENERAL BASEBALL NEWS OF THE DAY

The Pittsburg Baseball Club blayed another game with the East End Athletics and pulverized them. President Day states why the charter for the New York Ball Club was applied for. John M. Ward makes a statement. The Association pennant contest is still exciting.

It is some time since the baseball patrons of the East End were treated to such a burlesque of the national game as they were vesterday afternoon in Liberty Park. The Pittsburgs again tackled the champions of the county league, and the work done by the latter was of such an inferior quality that to style them champions is a prostration of the title that can scarcely be defended. It was thought that after Wednesday's game the East Enders would brace up a little and show some tolerably fair work. However, yes-terday's playing was not even up to the standard of Wednesday.

Judging from the two games between the Pitusburgs and the Athletics it would seem folly to arrange games between the amateurs and the professionals. Of course there are engagements already made for games between the home club and county league aggregations at Braddock and McKeesport, but after these are played it ought to be a long time before any more amateur clubs are asked to face the

HAD SOME STRANGERS.

The East Enders had several "borrowed men in their team yesterday. Among the bor-rowed people were: Hutchinson, Blair and McShannic. They did not improve matters. Gumbert went in to pitch, but was glad to retire at the end of the fifth inning. Lauer took his place and was also thumped hard. The fielding, with the exception of D. Barr's work, was rank. Barr really played excellently and he promises to develop into a first-class outfielder.

The Pittsburgs played extremely loose and careless and evidently gave the people to un-derstand that ball playing wasn't altogether a luxury. Sowders pitched a good game. The amateurs made a lively start and looked as if they were going to have things pretty much their own way. However, the third inning settled everything in this respect.

During the game there were lots of fun.

GOT GUMBERT'S SIGNS. Before the second inning was over Miller. unlap and Beckley got "on to" Gumbert's signs and they coached every batter that went signs and they coached every batter that went to the place. As a result Il good hits were made, netting 12 runs, aided by some errors. In the fourth inning Fields knocked the ball over the left field fence for a home run. Hits, errors and bases on balls got all the Pittsburgs runs in. At times the amateurs were kept running about the park as if they were being chased by tigers. However, it is to be hoped the Pittsburgs and the Athletics will not meet again until the East Endors are capable of doing better work.

The pame was called at the end of the first half of the seventh inning and the game went

PHILADELPHIA, October 10.-Ward, the well-known short stop of the New York club and President of the American Brotherhood of Ball Players, was seen at the Continental Hotel this afternoon by a reporter. He refused to say anything about the alleged scheme of the Brotherhood, but stated that if (with great emphasis on the if) anything did come of it the American Association players would not be touched, and that all statements of Association players to the contrary were made, so far as he could judge, to produce beneficial results to themselves only. Ward said that the letter had shown to a correspondent, was a letter di-rected to W. L. Latham. When Ward received a letter from W. L. Latham he wrote asking if W. L. Latham was Ariie Latham. He received in reply a letter stating that the first letter was from the only and original Arlie, which he then answered.

munication, but said that it was on perfectly legitimate business. In answer to an inquiry Ward said he thought that St. Louis would win the American Association championship, and that New York would win the world's series without trouble. President John B. Day, of the New York club, says only enough games will be played in the world's series to give one club a majority of the series. Eleven games will be scheduled, and Ward says New York will have won the requisite six when not more

Captain S. S. Brown's Buddhist won a great race, after an exciting accident, at Morris Park, Kingston and Cracksman ran a dead heat. There was some very fast pacing and trotting at Terre Haute. The races at Jerome Park, Latonia and Washington were good. Morris Park, October 10.—The real sport of to-day's meeting occurred in the second race when Cracksman and Kingston ran a dead heat for the $1,000 purse. It was claimed by many that Cracksman repeatedly bumped against Kingston in the final quarter. It was a magnificent struggle. Buddhist, with Jimmie Mc-Laughlin up, was backed off the boards for the protectory stakes, and as one of the crowd expressed it, "Captain Brown had a bar'l of money on him." What might have been a serious accident happened to McLaughlin as he cantered past the stand. When a few feet beyond the stand, and just as he was preparing to turn about to go to the post, Buddhist stumble and McLaughlin went over his head and landed squarely on his back on the ground. The horse jogged leisurely down the track, McLaughlin arose to his feet and with some assistance limped painfully down the track to the paddock. After a short delay he remounted and went to the post. He landed Buddhist a winner by a good margin, and was again handsomely applauded.

GLASS WOULDN'T SHOOT He Declined to Contest Against Captain Mc-Clure in Their Match.

The proposed shooting match between Charles Glass, of New Castle, and Captain Q. L. McClure, which was underlined to take place yesterday at Squirrel Hill, fell through, About 200 people were assembled to see the contest, but Mr. Giass objected to the Captain's birds, claiming they had been tampered. This excuse was strong enough to prevent Mr. Giass excuse was strong enough to prevent Mr. Glass from shooting. The Captain shot one bird and was awarded the match and stakes, $100 a side. Captain McClure's friends state emphatically that his birds were all right and had been sent by gentlemen who supply birds to almost every big contest in the country. Their talls, as usual, were slightly cut, but this is invariably done when birds are sent in boxes. It is claimed that Mr. Glass thought he had a task in hand that was too difficult for him. One of his backers offered him $5 if he would contest. An exhibition contest took place between Captain McClure, Charles Richardson and J. P. Andrews. The two first named won by each killing ten straight. Mr. Andrews killed nine.

ANOTHER BANQUET IN THE EVENING.

in Original Scheme Proposed by a Member From the United States.

The delegates to the International Congress are continuing their tour of inspection hroughout New England. Yesterday they rigited Yale College and other points of interest in Connecticut.

NEW HAVEN, CONN., October 10 .- Soon after the excursion party returned to the train last night, in Hartford, the rain began to fall, and a steady down pour lasted until the cars started for Collinsville at 7:30 o'clock this morning. When that place was reached the rain ceased. The sun made its appearance, and the quarter of a mile walk through the fresh country lane runnine from the station to the works of the Collins' Edge Tool Company was enjoyed by the party.

As time pressed it was necessary to make the visit too short to afford a proper opportunity for a complete understanding of the complicated processes through which the steel passes from the ingot to the shining proad-ax or slender machette, and the South and Central Americans saw for the first time how the bush-hooks and machettes with which they are so familiar are produced, and learned with surprise that one-half of the 600 employes engaged in these works were making Spanish axes and tools for shipment to South and Central America. PRESENTED WITH KNIVES.

After the inspection of the works the visitors were presented with souvenirs consisting of metallic pincushions of oxidized silver and with murderous-looking bowie knives. At 10 o'clock the train was again boarded, and the party started for Meriden, which was reached at 11;30.

Mayor Wallace, at the head of the Reception Committee, led the party from the train to the works of the Meriden Britannia Company, where the evolution of plated ware from blocks of white metal to the finished product was witnessed. At the huge brass mill the party saw the workmen producing 1,000 hanging lamps per day, and later were taken to the Meriden Opera House, where there was a display of goods which had been manufactured in the town. The range of goods comprised hand coffee grinders, exquisite onyx and brass goods, iron vises, bronze clocks, iron screws, harness goods, pianos, cut glass, guns and rugs. Many of the business interests distributed price catalogues with trade discounts plainly printed, and these were eagerly taken by the delegates from the South WELCOME AT NEW HAVEN. At 10:30 o'clock places were resumed on the train and at 2 P. M. New Haven was reached. Mayor Peck and a committee received the party. Thirty-eight carriages conveyed the delegates from the depot out from the city and up to the top of East Rock, which is being laid out by New Haven as a park. Here the foreign visitors saw the finest sweep of American scenery. saw the finest sweep of American scenery that has yet greeted them.

Descending again into the city, the Yale College buildings were visited. In the old library hall President Dwight briefly wel-comed the visitors. He said it was well that they should be received in that place.

The university represented the universal brotherhood of mankind.

Education and religion made all peoples one. He welcomed the Southerners as friends. They were strangers in their countries, in their language and in same degree, in their tanguage, and, in some de-gree, in their customs. But the freedom which embraced the peoples of the Western Hemisphere made all men fellows and brothers in freedom. Each member of the party was introduced to President Dwight, and all were then driven to the train to prepare for the Chamber of Commerce banquet. ANOTHER BANQUET.

At the banquet this evening President Dowell, of the Chamber of Commerce, presided. After an address of vielcome in Spanish by Prof. Knapp, of Yale, ex-Senator Henderson responded for the Congressional delegates. He strongly urged that after the Congress should adjourn, one of the new war ships be loaded with the goods of our nation and sent South to be unloaded among the merchants there, that they might see the goods and learn the prices, and be convinced that reciprocal trade would be well for them and for us. That would be what a Yankee would call business, and lac (the speaker) professed to be a man of business. (Applause.

President Dwight, of Yale, next spoke briefly. He dwelt upon the relation of the university to the people, and welcomed the delegates as a citizen of Connecticut and a citizen of the United States. Delegate Calderon, of Columbia, in Spanish, expressed the good will of his people to the United States, and his hope for closer relations.

Young James Kerns was crushed to death The guests were then driven to their train, which leaves during the night for Springby seven tons of iron falling on him yesterday morning at Oliver Bros. & Phillips mill on the Southside. The boy lived on field, Mass. Sixteenth street.

Though this is the view taken by a prominent official of an organization, elsewhere it is held that the puddlers will put up with the alteration in the time rather than throw themselves out of work by walking out.

Strong, healthy H. A. Jones has his face scarred with ugly cuts and bruises, and his scalp has likewise been sewed up in many scalp has likewise been sewed up in many places. He is a young man about 35 whose people live in Baltimore. He was attacked by the rioters while attempting to arrest one of the ringleaders under orders from Dr. Sruith. He was knocked down by the mob, and stamped upon, kicked and beaten and nearly clubbed to death. Dr. Smith, in giving his account of the riot, said: NO WARNING GIVEN.

Mollie Bennett, Julius Kinfeld and Annie Pleugh.

In addition to this raid the inspector notified "Italian Dan," who keeps a place at No. 1157, Jennie Huntsman, at No. 1153, and Callie Lyons, at 1155, to vacate their houses, within 24 hours or he would arrest the proprietors and all their inmates.

The Inspector says the row of houses from 1147 to 1157 Liberty street has been one of the worst nests in the city, and he has secured evidence enough to convict every one of the parties mentioned above for illegal liquor selling, and keeping disorderly houses. Bowman is the only one against whom such charges have been entered, but NO WARNING GIVEN.

"We had no warning of the outbreak whatever. We did not even suspect it. There are 137 negroes employed in the phosphate mines, and they were all sent there from the city of Baltimore. The worst element of them were ship hands who had been arrested for desertion and other offenses and sent there by the United States Shipping Commissioner instead of being sent to jall, so you can see that they were a pretty hard class of men and up to all kinds of viciousness and deviltry when the opportunity presented itself.

Af they had been unsophisticated natives of that region it wight have been an easy matter to subdue them, but, being colored laborers picked up in an American city, they were an entirely different class to deal with. There are no natives on the island of Navasso. It is entirely barren. The house we took refuge in when the attack was made was no protection whatever from bullets. The doors were only made of mosquito netting and the walls were a mere shell of thin boards.

Before we got into the house I fired into the mob that had Jones on the ground, and hit one of them. They concealed themselves behind trees and stones, so that our fire had little effect on them. The dynamite bombs they threw weighed a pound apiece, and I suppose the only reason the building was not shattered to pieces was because they were thrown on the plazza instead of under it. whom such charges have been entered, but the others will be treated to the same dose if they are found in the houses this afternoon. The property on which this row of houses is located is reported to be the property of a well-known business man, and the police officials say that it their present efforts to remove the vicious characters from the houses prove ineffectual they will serve notice on the owners and make them responsible. There were 11 of us, comprising the white officers of the company. When we were compelled to abandon our shelter to escape being blown to pieces by the blasting cartridges, we made a rush, but the blacks gathered around us and closed in upon us, using knives, clubs and revolvers. knives and clubs. Mr. Foster was the Superintendent.

We reached a small house, in which we hid for safety for the time, and in the interval the negroes ransacked and pillaged the Superintendent's house in which we first took shelter. The shooting of James Mahon was one of the most bloodthirsty acts of the day. The negroes came to our hiding place and promised us safety from attack if we came to supper. We came out and found that some of the negroes were disposed to intercede for us.

We marched along in Indian file, when one of the villainous blacks known as George S. Key, stooped and fixed a revolver within six inches of Mahon's face, the ball going through his cheek. As he fell the fiend fired another bullet into Mahon's back, which plerced his heart. Jones felt that his time had come, but if it had been the negro's intention to shoot Jones, something caused him to hesitate and the man's life was spared. An English vessel was lying off the count, but heavy storms were prevailing and we had no means of communicating with her.

WELCOME ASSISTANCE.

I, however, got a note to the captain, and he sailed to Jamaica and sent the British man-of-war to our assistance. When the vessel came to the island the negroes were thoroughly trightened. A part of them were still thirsting to finish the job, by killing those of us who had survived. The captain of the Forward got his gatling guns ready for service and threatened to shell the island unless every man of us was turned over in safety. We were taken aboard the vessel on Thursday, after being in imminent peril of our lives since the previous Baturday, when the insurrection took place.

As we assended the steps up the side of the vessel the officers paid us the compliment of hanging the American fing over the side. We were treated royally by the officers of the man-of-war. He took us to Kingston, where we were taken to a club-house and entertained as if we were distinguished people, and put safely aboard the steamer Dorian, destined to this port. We have been treated like princes from the moment of our rescue by the English cruiser. There was only one sail accident to mar the joy of our rescue. Samuel March, one of our men, who had his head frightfully cut and bruised, died on the Forward on the way to Jamaica.

AN IMPORTANT SHIPMENT.

An important shipment was made from this city yesterday to Auckland, New Zea-land. It consisted of 200 tons of steel blooms manufactured by the Junction Iron and Steel Works at Mingo Junction, and was forwarded by Mr. Evan Francis, the well-known steel roller of the Apollo Iron and Steel Works. The destination of the shipment is Wonongo, New Zealand, where a company of Colonial and British capitalists is about to engage in the steel business. Mr. Francis leaves on Monday to take charge of the new plant. The object of buying the bloom here is to ascertain the relative cost of plates made from the imported bloom as compared with those manufactured from bloom made at the works at Wonongo. If it is found cheaper to import the bloom, a very large trade may be looked for in this direction, as the colonists have fairly recovered from the monetary depression of the last few years, and are now looking around for methods of manufacturing for themselves what they now depend for supply of on England and the States. nation of the shipment is Wonon-
